LR 7-11 ADMINISTRATIVE MOTION
TO SET SCHEDULE FOR AMICUS
BRIEFING ON PROPOSED CONSENT DECREE

Hon. Araceli Martínez-Olguín

1 TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

2 Under Civil Local Rule 7-11, the Committee for the First Amendment, Free Press,
3 Freedom of the Press Foundation, the Future Film Coalition, and the International Documentary
4 Association (collectively, “Proposed Amici”) respectfully request leave to file, and that the Court
5 then grant, this administrative motion. This motion seeks to set a briefing schedule by which the 6 Proposed Amici may later seek leave to file amicus briefs concerning the pending Joint Motion to 7 Enter Consent Decree and Dissolve Stipulation and Order Not to Close dated September 21, 2026
8 (ECF No. 243) (“Joint Motion”). Given the fast-moving nature of the proceedings, amici
9 respectfully request an opportunity to be heard before the disposition of the Joint Motion and 10 propose a schedule that will give them time to consolidate the number of proposed amicus briefs
11 and contemplated issues to be raised, subject to the Court’s instructions on timing.
12

13 The administrative motion is timely because this Court has no deadline for amicus briefs or 14 administrative motions seeking to set them. The proposed scheduling order is submitted three days
15 after the Joint Motion was filed and as soon as was practicable before the Court’s September 24
16 hearing. As explained in the Declaration of Brendan Benedict, given the Proposed Amici’s desire
17 to file an administrative motion seeking this relief prior to the Court’s first hearing on the Joint
18 Motion, the Proposed Amici could not obtain the merging parties’ consent to the schedule before
19 filing despite their efforts to. Plaintiff States take no position.
20

21 LEGAL STANDARD

22 This Court has “exercised great liberality in permitting amicus briefs.” California ex rel.
23 Becerra v. U.S. Dep’t of the Interior, 381 F. Supp. 3d 1153, 1164 (N.D. Cal. 2019) (citation
24 modified). “The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure do not address requests to participate as amici, so
25 district courts rely on Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 29 . . . when considering such requests.”
26 Merritt v. Barclays PLC, No. 2:23-cv-09217-MEMF-KS, 2026 LX 43832, at *8 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 19, 27 2026) (citation modified). Under that standard, an amicus brief aids courts when “the amicus has
28

1 unique information or perspective that can help the court beyond the help that the lawyers for the 2 parties are able to provide” and it addresses “legal issues that have potential ramifications beyond
3 the parties directly involved”. NGV Gaming, Ltd. v. Upstream Point Molate, LLC, 355 F. Supp. 2d
4 1061, 1067 (N.D. Cal. 2005) (citation modified).

5 ARGUMENT

6 This motion proceeds in three parts. First, the Proposed Amici identify themselves and their
7 interests. Because there is no party adverse to the Joint Motion, their perspective on the proposed
8 consent decree will be particularly helpful. Second, the proposed consent decree raises serious
9 potential constitutional and competition questions. Third, the proposed schedule matches the 10 standard schedule that district courts enter to permit amicus participation.
11

12 I. The Proposed Amici Will Be Helpful.

13 The Proposed Amici are members of the Block the Merger coalition, which has collected
14 over 200,000 signatures from professionals and consumers opposed to the Paramount Skydance—
15 Warner Brothers Discovery merger¹; organized protests and roundtables around the country; and 16 educated the public on the ramifications of consolidation and coordination on film, television news,
17 television production, streaming, cable, and archival footage.
18

19 The Committee for the First Amendment, relaunched October 1, 2025, is a rapidly-
20 growing coalition of 3,500+ artists, storytellers, and entertainment industry leaders and workers—
21 from legacy film and television to digital creators, comedians, editors, stagehands, makeup artists,
22 writers, showrunners, musicians, actors, producers and more. Its mission is to organize the 23 entertainment industry to fight assaults on the First Amendment and be a pillar of democracy.

1 Free Press is a non-profit, non-partisan media policy organization working to ensure that
2 the people have a voice in the decisions that shape our media system. With 1.4 million members
3 across the country, Free Press promotes public policies that protect free speech and promote a
4 diversity of voices. Since its founding in 2003, Free Press has opposed media consolidation because 5 it results in less news, less competition, less viewpoint diversity, fewer jobs and higher prices.

6 Freedom of the Press Foundation is a nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting and
7 defending press freedom and public interest journalism. It believes the merger should not proceed
8 because credible journalists at the *Wall Street Journal*² and elsewhere have reported that it results
9 from improper dealmaking between Larry Ellison and the Trump administration to alter news
10 coverage to the President's liking in exchange for federal regulatory approval.

11 Future Film Coalition ("FFC") is a growing national coalition of more than 650 members,
12 including filmmakers, producers, film workers, distributors, sales agents, festivals, independent
13 movie theaters, film organizations, and industry groups nationwide. Its members operate across the 14 full film and media supply chain and are predominantly small businesses and independent
15 contractors embedded in local economies and communities across the United States. FFC and its 16 members have a direct interest in this transaction because they depend on meaningful competition
17 among studios, distributors, and platforms to finance, acquire, license, distribute, and exhibit their 18 work.

19 Since 1982, the International Documentary Association ("IDA") has supported nonfiction
20 filmmaking and filmmakers through its major program areas: filmmaker services, advocacy,
21 convening and publishing. IDA is dedicated to the vision of a world where documentary creators

1 flourish. Through its work, IDA connects audiences with the best of the form, provides resources,
2 creates community, and defends the rights and freedoms of documentary makers around the globe.

3 II. The Proposed Consent Decree Presents Serious and Complicated Questions.

4 First, the nature of a parens patriae action raises serious questions about whether and to 5 what extent the entry of the proposed consent decree will extinguish potential claims from citizens
6 of the Plaintiff States concerning the merger. Plaintiff States’ basis for seeking a Clayton Act
7 injunction is their parens authority. (See ECF No. 1 ¶ 15.) The general rule is that “[w]hen a state
8 litigates common public rights, the citizens of that state are represented in such litigation by the 9 state and are bound by the judgment.” Satsky v. Paramount Commc’ns, Inc., 7 F.3d 1464, 1470
10 (10th Cir. 1993). “If the claims are for injuries to interests which all citizens hold in common, and 11 for which the State has already recovered,” those claims “are barred by the consent decree.” Id. To 12 be sure, claims to enforce private rights—such as damages under the Clayton Act—may not be 13 released where a State has not sought them. See In re Exxon Valdez, 270 F.3d 1215, 1228 (9th Cir.
14 2001). But the question remains whether private parties in the Plaintiff States can seek to unwind
15 the transaction or seek divestitures after entry of the consent decree.

16 Relatedly, the proposed penalty payments for breach of the Annual Film Release
17 Commitment stipulates payments to certain special interest groups and nonparties that do not
18 include the Proposed Amici. (See ECF No. 244 § III.A.10.) But representation by the Plaintiff States
19 may not be adequate where they negotiate relief that trades off among competing interest groups in 20 this way. Cf. Ortiz v. Fibreboard Corp., 527 U.S. 815, 856-59 (1999); In re Foreign Exch.
21 Benchmark Rates Antitrust Litig., 407 F. Supp. 3d 422, 438-40 (S.D.N.Y. 2019); In re LIBOR-
22 Based Fin. Instruments Antitrust Litig., 299 F. Supp. 3d 430, 537-39 (S.D.N.Y. 2018).

23 Second, the Proposed Amici have concerns that many provisions of the proposed consent
24 decree do not resolve the antitrust claims or introduce First Amendment problems. The Annual Film
25 Release Commitment appears to allow the merging parties to together make fewer films than they

1 made separately last year. (See ECF No. 244 § III.A.1.) The carriage negotiation commitment may
2 be commercially unworkable. (See id. § III.B.1.) The proposed editorial oversight board poses free
3 speech problems if the Court must superintend its implementation. (See id. § III.D.) And the 4 overbroad force majeure clause may render most commitments illusory anyway. (See id. § VIII.C.)
5 All these issues are complex and merit additional study.

6 III. The Proposed Schedule Is the Standard Schedule.

7 As to scheduling, district courts follow the FRAP 29 deadline, which “requires that a motion
8 for leave to file an amicus brief—and the proposed amicus brief itself—be filed ‘no later than 7
9 days after the principal brief of the party being supported is filed.’” Merritt, 2026 LX 43832, at *8
10 (quoting FRAP 29(a)(6)). Under Civil Local Rule 7-3(a), an opposition brief to a motion is due 14
11 days “after the motion was filed.” Were the Joint Motion filed on September 21 to have an 12 opposition, that opposition brief would be due October 5. And borrowing the amicus deadline from 13 FRAP 29, a motion for leave to file an amicus brief opposing the Joint Motion would be due 7 days
14 after that opposition. Because October 12 is a legal holiday, the ordinary deadline to seek leave to 15 file an amicus brief opposing the Joint Motion would be October 13. See FRCP 6(a)(1)(C).
16

18 The Proposed Amici appreciate that the Court has moved incredibly quickly in this complex
19 dispute to resolve issues before the merging parties’ self-imposed ticking fee deadline. But there is 20 presently no hearing set on requiring a bond to secure against the ticking fee. Nor is there any 21 pending motion to shorten the time to consider the Joint Motion. Accordingly, Proposed Amici
22 believe that the default schedule for amicus participation is appropriate. But Proposed Amici are 23 ready to coordinate their filings on any schedule that the Court enters that would give them
24 adequate time to prepare to be heard before a ruling on the Joint Motion.
25

26 CONCLUSION

27 The Court should grant the Proposed Amici leave to file this administrative motion, grant 28 this motion, and enter the proposed scheduling order.
